

We're testing and learning, and this is a complex industry. While we're in beta, we're keeping fees to a minimum. If anything changes, we'll let you know.

Fee Name	Translation	Bumped Fee
Account Fee	You open a brokerage account. You need that account to receive and hold shares of stock. This is a fee just for having an account.	$0
Maintenance Fee	Charged for upkeep of your account. Some accounts are higher maintenance than others, so this may change depending on what type of accounts we offer.	$0
Trading Fee or Commission	When you buy and sell stock.	$0
Account Closure via App Fee	A straightforward account closure from the app.	$0
Manual Account Closure Fee	More rare: if there is a complex situation (such as court order or death) when you close your account.	$0
Outgoing Automated Customer Account Transfer Fee	Unfortunately unavoidable. If you ever decide to transfer the shares in your Bumped account to another brokerage firm, it costs money.  If you're transferring shares because you want to sell, there's a way to do so without this fee (though there may be taxes). You could sell your shares through the Bumped app, then transfer the money to your bank via ACH.	$75
ACH Transfer Fee	When you want to move money between your brokerage and bank accounts, via an Automated Clearing House.	$0
Corporate Action/Election/Reorg Fee	For example, when a merger or acquisition of a company you own fractional shares in happens. As a result, there could be mandatory or voluntary action, and fees may vary.	$0
Reorg Wire Fee	When there's a corporate action that incurs a fee (like above), Reorg Wire Fee covers the cost of transferring that money in if you choose to pay it from an external account.	$0
Standard Legal Transfers	Review and processing legal documentation when changes need to be made (like legal name changes).	$0
